About the Conference

Navigating New Currents of Indigenous Prosperity

The Indigenous Blue Economy Conference 2025, taking place November 18–20 in Parksville, BC, will bring together Indigenous leaders, ocean entrepreneurs, environmental advocates, and policymakers to explore the integration of traditional knowledge with modern marine and freshwater practices. With a focus on sustainability, economic reconciliation, and Indigenous rights, the conference will highlight opportunities in fisheries, aquaculture, tourism, marine stewardship, and transportation—showcasing how Indigenous leadership is shaping the future of the blue economy.

By sponsoring the Indigenous Blue Economy Conference 2025, you're helping to advance Indigenous leadership in one of Canada's fastest-growing and most vital sectors. Your support directly contributes to creating a platform where Indigenous knowledge, rights, and economic opportunity are recognized and elevated. Your sponsorship helps to:

- Grow BC's economy as a whole through a commitment to sustainable ocean and water-based industries
- Amplify Indigenous voices in marine stewardship and blue economy innovation
- Support economic reconciliation through access to capital and business opportunities
- Foster collaboration between Nations, industry, and government
- Promote sustainable practices grounded in traditional knowledge and science
- Increase access for youth, Elders, and community members to participate
